

Honorably discharged veterans can shop tax-free online

Honorably discharged veterans can now shop tax-free at the online military exchanges. The lifetime benefit is due to a change in Department of Defense policy. Provided.

Just this month, an estimated 18.5 million honorably discharged U.S. military veterans became eligible for a tax-free shopping option that should give them an opportunity to save some money.

A change in Department of Defense policy allows those veterans to shop online at military exchanges. The websites are a modern version of the Post Exchange and Base Exchange stores that military veterans are sure to remember.

Thousands of on-base stores still exist, but most veterans can only shop the exchanges online. Different rules apply for 100 percent service-disabled veterans, who already had shopping access. Read more...
